

BUILDING BY REPUTATION

The Isle of Man is home to an increasingly diverse and technically advanced cluster of businesses providing services to the superyacht industry. OceanWeb Ltd, based in Port Erin, is one such company, offering customised and cost-effective satellite communications hardware, software & internet-based solutions.

It's an industry in which reputation is everything – and OceanWeb's increasingly diverse and growing client base has grown predominantly from recommendations.

The company's expertise has been applied to projects of all sizes and complexity - from private yachts requiring a single PC, through to 120+m yachts with a suite of PC's, servers and communication systems.

OceanWeb can offer a range of highly specialised services provided by their Sea Tel, Sailor & KVH trained engineers to ensure every installation is completed correctly and to the highest standard.

In this era of 4G the company can supply up to 2TB of global roaming high speed data per month, whilst offering full support, administration and monitoring services.

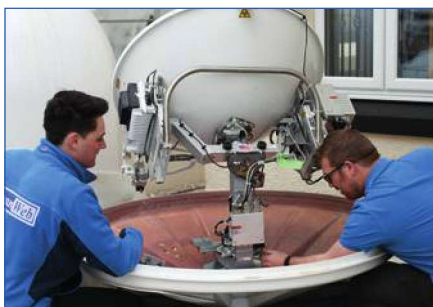

Modern superyacht operators like to provide all the comforts of home and OceanWeb can provide guests with Sky Offshore content to meet their specific needs.

Working with OceanWeb clients can rest assured that all their IT requirements are in safe hands. From managed IT support ensuring the efficient day to day operation of the whole IT infrastructure, to managed email systems and secure bandwidth management guaranteeing fast, stable and reliable onboard internet - not so much as a luxury but an essential pre-requisite these days.

OceanWeb is a Manx company that's going places. Founded in 1997 the company moved into newly renovated premises in 2016, where it has created a central hub for its engineers. Any issues that arise can be resolved in the timeliest fashion, by skilled engineers using the latest diagnostic tools. OceanWeb's certified engineers can configure, upgrade or build all hardware and install any software. It means that equipment provided to clients is ready to just plug in and go.

With its growing client base OceanWeb is also in expansionary mode and looking for talented people to join the team.
